144 German Ships Crash, Some at Rate Of One Per Minute

Thousands in Streets of Empire's Capital in Late Afternoon Rush Hour Dash Into Raid Shelters.

By The Associated Press.

A mighty squadron of Germany's fearful Stuka divebombers plunged down on the London area at the height of the home-bound rush hour last night, and hurled tons of bombs on famed Croydon airport in a single phase of the greatest aerial assault in history.

In all, approximately 6,000 German and British planes probably went into action in titanic, widespread battles from morning until long after the late summer's dusk.

Hundreds Watch Fight. Hundreds of Croydon's 200,000 population saw the air fight from the streets and their homes. Bombs that plummeted among them took an undisclosed toll.

Bomb-strewn splinters damaged a bus passing the big airport, a perfume factory was hit and set afire, and even as smoke clouds billowed over the neighborhood rescue crews worked feverishly amid the wreckage to save those they could reach.

The bus was wrecked. Its engine was ripped out, the driver's cabin was splintered and windows were smashed by the explosive which dug a crater 10 yards in diameter in the road. Attacked In Garden.

One woman said she counted 10 heavy bomb explosions. Anoth-

"They even machine-gunned us to the shelter in our back garden. How we got there God alone knows."

Auxiliary firemen sped through debris littered streets—"a cool lot," one observer commented putting out fires methodically.
With the warning roar of the first explosion women darted into the streets to carry their children to shelter. One mother herded her brood of seven before her like a scene from a Mother Goose book.

One bomb ripped to pieces beside a shelter where four little boys had just fled, helping a crippled playmate along with them, from a game of hide and seek. They reached safety only by moments.

Mother, Baby Escape. One elderly man told me that an explosion alongside his home sent up a shower of earth that rattled ominously against the walls and: "It gave Maw a fair old turn, it did.'

The woman who said she was machine-gunned, told of dashing for the garden yard shelter with her two-month-old baby in her arms. She said she heard the bullets strike and the whistle of falling bombs. Another witness said the raiders dropped "screaming bombs" as well as explosives and added:

"They scared me, all right. felt weak in the knees until I heard the hum of our fighter motors. Then, by George, I walked right out in the yard-bomb splinters and all-and shouted like schoolboy."

Confederate Vet Also Thinks Roosevelt 'Has Own Way Too Much.'

By LUKE GREENE.

RINGGOLD, Ga., Aug. 15.— Scarcely a stone's throw from the historic battlegrounds of Chickamauga park, we sat today on the sun-splashed porch of 96-year-old Judge T. B. Carroll, a Confederate veteran, and listened to him tell how this beautiful mountain-ous section of Georgia cannot go for Wendell Willkie for President of the United States.

Judge Carroll is a typical citizen of Catoosa county. The peo-ple know him and love him. They respect his views.

Some of the staunch residents of Ringgold told us to look up the judge and talk to him about politics. We found him after driving approximately 10 miles up through the sloping valley where Yankee and southern soldiers clashed more than three-quarters of a century ago.

Characteristic Greeting.

He was the first to come to the door, his silvery hair flowing in a gentle breeze. The first words he spoke after the introduction

"Who did you marry:
"I'm sorry, Judge Carroll, but I'm not married to anyone you might know." was the reply. "In "Who did you marry?" might know," was the reply. "In fact, I'm not married to anyone."

This greeting is characteristic of these mountain folk. They always have a hearty welcome. They'll strike up a kinship with you if they can.

Judge Carroll sat down and be-gan to talk. He told of his part in the War Between the States. He was an officer and fought in some of the more important battles. His mind is still in tune with this modern era, but it can strike up a harmonious chord with the past. Exhibits Fighting Spirit.

At one point in the conversa-tion, he got up his fighting spirit. 'After exhausting state politics we asked him if he was going to vote for Willkie for President.

The judge sat up straight. His face was grim. His eyes were burning as they must have burned when he charged against the Yan-kee soldiers in those two battles of Bull Run.

"The devil," he exclaimed. "You must be a fool. How do you think a Confederate soldier could vote for a Republican?"

He then went into a discussion of how the south will continue to be solidly Democratic. He cannot visualize a day when it will be turned over to the Republicans. This he believes despite the fact he is not a great admirer of President Roosevelt. He thinks the President has things too much his own way.

"Why it is necessary to have congressmen up there in Washington if they are going to do everything the President wants?" he in-Former Representative.

Judge Carroll served more than a decade as a representative in the legislature along about 1914. He enjoys talking about the days he spent as a politician.

Preliminary census figures showed 1940 populations of 2,334,437 for Oklahoma, 639,972 for South Dakota and 1,313,468 for Nebraska. The losses were said to have been 2.6 per cent for Oklahoma, 7.6 for South Dakota and 4.7 for Nebraska.

Utah, however, was reported to have gained 8 per cent. Its 1 figure was placed at 548,393. Officials said they assumed frouths and dust storms of the mid-'30s were factors in the de-

Tells of Cockroaches That Stand Up and Beg Not To Be Hit.

Two schools of thought about how much our government should tell the people about preparedness plans. One is that the people—who own the nation, after all, should know all that's going on. The other is that everything should be veiled with secrecy. I'm inclined toward the former policy—on large scale affairs, at

No government, no big corporation, can cover up anything important when there are folk who want to know. We arrest "spies" for taking photographs of fortifications which are overrun by visitors every fair Sunday—photographs which can be found on penny postcards. Silly! I don't mean that emissaries of

I don't mean that emissaries of toreign governments should be invited to look over blue prints of new guns. But if they want to see them they'll see them, anyway—by some hook or crook.

Grand juries are sworn to remain shutmouthed about what goes on behind the closed doors. But no courthouse reporter worth his pay check ever failed to find put all about it in plenty of time for his final edition. Whether he printed it or not was up to his

There are certain negotiations between the secretary of state and officials of other nations which are kept secret—as far as possible. Most of them concern trade elations. They cannot be understood by the man on the street. Public discussion might break up good thing for all concerned.

But it has been the American olicy to tell the people—after the papers were signed—just what had been done. That's good iemocracy. After all, the smallest stockholder in a company has right to know what the directors are doing. Or, at least, what hey have done.

Too Darn Smart

Reason I'm coming to town exra early and going home extra ate is I'm temporarily—I hope— n disfavor in the domestic domitile. Which is what comes of being too durn smart.

ng too durn smart.

The Light of Our Life was reading the paper and commenting on in item about a woman in a disant town.

"I'm sure she was the pleasant woman who joined our group at breakfast in Athens last spring," he said. "Her name was Robnson, too, and she was from Canilla."

I ventured to assert she was vrong, though she rarely is. But never learn to let things slide. "The lady from Camilla," I explained, patiently, "was named Robertson, not Robinson. The name is spelled differently, you'll observe. Furthemore, she didn't oin us at breakfast but at uncheon. And it wasn't in Athens out in Monroe. The lady who hared our breakfast wasn't from Camilla but from Valdosta and ner name was Smith."

There's such a thing as being oo right. Which is why I hesiate to go home.

Touching Appeal.

Fair lady of our acquaintance recently moved into a pretty home on a nice street. The decorators had done a neat job, the plumbing was in order, the roof didn't eak and all was lovely.

Editor's Plaint

Editor Jack Hilton of the eseemed Banks County Journal voices a complaint:
"Local news in a country

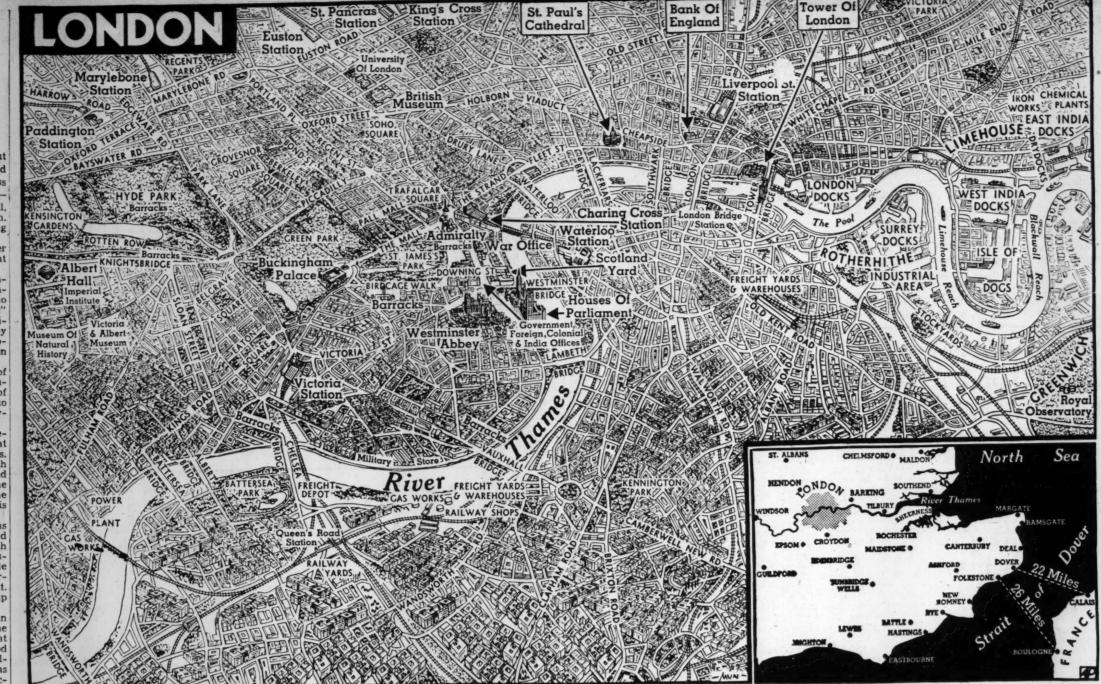

"Local news in a country weekly is the best news, most appreciated by the readers. We are not as young as we used to be but get all the goings and comings we hear of, but, of course, fail o get much of the local news. We have absolutely no help in geting up local news, the people in our office will not even open their nouths to tell us anything in the news line. If we walk out of the office and ask a citizen if he enows any news he can give us nothing' is his answer. Seldom my person ever appears at this office to tell us any of the news we print. We can't get all the ocal news sitting here swatting lies, but we do the best we can."

Jack Williams' Journal-Herald, of Waycross, continues to say Ware county is the forgotten county as to highway improvements. One would think Jack, as a recent legislator, a publisher and lirst citizen in several ways, would have drag enough to pave Ware from all points of the compass. But perhaps that isn't his idea of statesmanship.

Told by Soda Jerker Most Kids Want Defense Training.

EMPORIA, Kan., Aug. 15.—The first one was a very cheerful kid jerking sodas, and I asked him what the other guys of draft age what the other guys of draft age thought about conscription.

"Most of 'em think it's prob'ly a good thing," he said. "They think if we're going to get mixed up over there, they'd ought to know all they can before it's time to go. Because it would be suicide to send a man over there without any training."

"Any of them object to it?"
"They'd all like to get it settled. Because you don't know whether or not to start looking for a job. Be kind of hard on you to get all settled down to something and then have to take a year off for training just as you were getting started. If we could know, one way or the other, as soon as possible, it would be easier.
"And maybe they could let us

"And maybe they could let us volunteer into some kind of training which would be useful to us later. Then it wouldn't be a year out of your life. But most of them want to get the training because they've heard and read about the new kind of armies over there, and they know we've got a lot to learn, and a year wouldn't be any too long to find out all you'd need. Then you hear a lot of the kids say that if we really get a good army here, quick, maybe it wouldn't ever have to go."

Very Serious Kid.

The second one was a very serious kid in slacks.

"Well, about conscription," he said, "two years ago I was leading the peace group in my college and we were all taking oaths not to fight, and we thought they were pretty good oaths. And we know just how dirty the last war was, with both sides secretly selling munitions to each other at a profit through the neutral countries.

"Now, I don't really know what to think. I suppose if we've got to go, we ought to have training. And it looks as though the country might have to fight a war and we'll have to go.

"The kids are all mixed up and have changed a lot. Nobody remembers the oaths not to fight, and back home almost everyone I know is trying to get into aviation or is already there.

New Kind of War.

"But we were pretty thoroughly sold in college on the idea that war was a hell of a business and never benefited anybody except people who made profit out of it. I guess now this is a new kind of war, only Dorothy Thompson and the rest of you haven't completely resold us.

"I've talked to a lot of fellows who were in the last war, asking them how they felt when they went. All of them believed what they did would make things better, that it would be a different world after they came back. And of course it wasn't.

"One thing you can be sure of is that the new crowd who will go to this next war hasn't any notion like that. The best thing you can say about this new war is that, if we win it, things will stay the same. And a lot of us don't think very highly of the way things are. We'd like to see them changed. And I guess they would

120 Men Idle As Strike Halts Road Project

Removal of Warden Results in Dispute in Pickens County.

Special to THE CONSTITUTION.

JASPER, Ga., Aug. 15.—A strike of approximately 120 men—resulting from a change in wardens —today had halted work on the Amicalola Falls scenic highway, one of Governor Rivers' pet proj-

Herman Watson, member of the State Highway Board in charge of the north Georgia district, said the strike resulted from a discontinuance of a boarding house that had been operated for the employes. He denied charges of excessive working hours which had been made by the strikers.

H. Grady Jones, Pickens county commissioner, said the men were waiting at his office here this morning "demanding either a change in wardens or a continuation of $2 a day minimum wage scale including board."

Jones said highway officials refused to intervene. He said a fleet of 11 tractors and 20 trucks will be turned back to the state and the Pickens county convict camp will be re-established in the widely publicized marble prison which, since February 1, has been used as a state camp.

The highway under construction runs from Jasper to Amicalola Falls, one of the natural wonders of Georgia, thence to Dawsonville, Dahlonega and Gainesville, and traverses Tate Mountain Estates

The change in wardens occurred
Tuesday, when Lewis Patterson was replaced. The strikers contended they were forced to work 15 hours a day since the change in wardens. The strikers include truck drivers, tractor operators, mechanics and common laborers.

Planes Blacken Skies.

planes are still coming over in ever-increasing numbers. The fourth raid on this harbor town is just over. More than 175 bombers winged overhead, dropped a few bombs and hurried on into the interior.

I have watched seven waves of German planes come across today. It seems they never will stop. Day-long they have blackened the skies above this port. In one flight alone there were almost 300 planes.

It is impossible to estimate how many dogfights there have been. I have watched planes battling until there is a pain in the back of my neck. The air battles have been in progress constantly.

I have never witnessed so many aerial battles in my life and I have covered Adolf Hitler's invasions since he struck down Poland.

Hears Planes Crash.

For an hour and a half without letup the sound of clashing planes was audible in one terrific air battle.

For a flashing moment the aerial battle raged directly over my head and one, possibly two, Messerschmitt fighters were sent crashing to earth. I saw two Messerschmitts bag barrage balloons in surprisedives during a dogfight at dusk. But one of the planes was shot down by a Spitfire behind the town and the other was hit by antiaircraft fire and fell into the sea.

Shrapnel spattered the quayside as the harbor batteries blazed away at the raiders. Spent machinegun shells peppered about where I stood watching the bat-

I watched a Messerschmitt fall out of one batch of fighting planes, and dive onto a balloon in a 350mile-per-hour drop. The balloon crumpled up and went down in

The Messerschmitt and the Spitfire zoomed back into the sky and were lost from sight in a screen Then a second German fighter dropped down on a balloon and filled it with incendiary bullets. There was a great gust of ugly smoke and the balloon disappeared. One of the first bursts from a medium-firing antiaircraft gun got a Messerschmitt with a direct hit. There was a huge burst of flame in mid-air and it traveled like a great Roman candle across the sky. The pilot must have been killed by the first searing flame from the engine and fuel tanks.

Burned Alive. That flaming torch came winging down, ever so slowly it seemed. I watched its flight. It landed outside the breakwater and there was a great blossom of spray. Nobody even bothered to send out a motor boat to rescue the pilot. knew he was dead—burned alive. There was a brief lull in the fighting after that—a sort of si-lence in honor of the dead, it

A short time later more German planes came winging over and again I watched the battles that High up in the sky like two hornets, a Spitfire and a Messer-schmitt locked in a death struggle. For one brief second the Messer-schmitt outmaneuvered the Spitfire and fired a burst into the back of the British plane.

I thought it was the end of the Spitfire pilot but he rolled out of the way beautifully and turned the tables, suddenly getting onto the tail of the Messerschmitt. His machine-guns blazed. And then I saw a speck falling from the Ger-man plane. An instant later a parachute blossomed white against a perfect blue sky.

The Nazi pilot drifted rapidly toward the sea. A motorboat put out to rescue him.

North Dakota, before the Washington Junior Board of Commerce, the Floridian asserted the United States was "a common country, the defense of which is commonly to be shared."

Nye had advocated legislation to make army service more attractive by increasing the soldiers' pay and permitting one-year en-listments. He argued that in that case, a system of voluntary recruiting would be adequate. Pepper said that theory boiled down to this: "If you make the remuneration attractive enough, you can get plenty of jobless boys going to attract many soldiers. If you are going to buy them, I pro-$250 a month because it's worth $250 a month."

National Guard Call Favored, reason is that "we must be and trained fighting force." Survey Shows

of super-highways for the conscripts after the completion of their year of compulsory training

The chief controversy over the National Guard bill dealt with its provision that the militiamen might be sent anywhere in the Western Hemisphere. Opponents, flocking to the support of an amendment by Representative Miller, Republican, Connecticut, to limit their service to the continental United States, its possessions and the Philippines, argued that power to send the guard into South America gave President virtual authority to declare war.

Power No Greater.
Supporters of the bill replied that such power was no greater than the President already has where the regular army and navy are concerned. They said, too, that adoption of the Miller amendment would be misunderstood in other countries, especially in the South American nations to which the United States has protection against any European or Asiatic attack.

"This amendment, I trust, will be overwhelmingly defeated," said Representative Rayburn, Demo-crat, Texas, the majority floor "It is dangerous and will be misunderstood not only in the western hemisphere, but to the ends of the earth. We must show here that there is no division on national defense. What we do and say here is known in the capitals of the world almost as soon as

The calling of the National Guard, which would mean an addition pose an amendment to pay them of anywhere from 150,000 to 200,000 to the regular army, finds no serious opposition in any of the major population groups. By a vote of 82 per cent or more, it is approved in all geographical sections, in all age groups, and from top to bottom of the income scale. On few issues have the common people ever been so unified.

Why the measure is popular can be clearly seen from the reasons given by the voters in explaining their attitude. The first and main reason is that "we must be prepared for emergency with a skilled

Alexander of John W. day honeymoon trip through Florida, was tied up in litigation yesterday as nieces and nephews were granted an injunction restraining Alexander's 39-year-old widow from disturbing any part widow from disturbing any part of his holdings rumored to be near $250,000.

The order, signed by Judge James C. Davis in Stone Mountain superior court, also ordered the widow, Mrs. Pauline Fretwell Alexander, to appear September 20 and show cause why her mar-riage to the 90-year-old businessman should not be nullified and a receiver appointed to handle the

The suit was filed by Robert E. Denham, of 418 Eighth street, a nephew of the late Mr. Alexander, who said he represented other heirs in charging that the May-December marriage was performed by "fraud and duress" and that it was part of a "conspiracy whereby the defendant was to enter into a marriage contract and at his death obtain all the property of John W. Alexander."

Mrs. Alexander is the former Mrs. Pauline Fretwell Pounds, of Valdosta. She and Alexander were married July 4 and, the petition alleges, they honeymooned in Florida where the elderly man purchased her a home valued at $7,500. He resided at 1723 Ponce de Leon avenue.

Denham's suit also contends that Alexander, at the time of the wedding, was "childish and didn't know what he was doing." It charges the marriage was a "conspiracy" an that it was entered into by defendant "for the purpose of obtaining all his property, knowing full well that his days on earth were numbered, as he had previously suffered a stroke of paralysis and his mind weak and he was wholly irre-

The petitioner also mentioned in his claims that "on or about July 17 John W. Alexander was carried to a hospital under mysterious circumstances; that he was dead on July 19, 15 days after his purported marriage."

Following Alexander's death, it was said, Mrs. Alexander immediately took charge of the estate and has been claiming the same as her own as "sole heir at law."

ATLANTA, GA., AUGUST 16, 1940.

Opportunity for Service

Atlanta, in the months and years to come, will be one of the great military centers of the world. Selection of this city to be the supply center for the army in the south will make it one of the most vital areas in the country, and will impose upon the people of Atlanta and the surrounding counties a responsibility they have in times past met.

It is not accidental that Atlanta is being made the supply center for the southern armies. In its early history, the capture of the city spelled the doom of a valiant army. In 1864, as today, it was the hub of communication within the south and the channel for the flow of supplies both north and south. The network of railroads, highways and sky lanes from the city today makes it the most important city, strategically, in the south. It is accessible from all sections of the nation by any number of alternate routes, and from it all areas in the south can be reached quickly

It will not be in the number of troops stationed here that the city will rank as a great military center. Wisely, these troops will be dispersed to localities in which they can most efficiently be trained. Fort Benning, Camp Jackson, Fort McClellan, Camp Beauregard, Fort Knox, Fort Bragg, Fort Oglethorne and other posts away from the big cities will house the troops. Near Atlanta, however, undoubtedly will be a number of defense air fields-not fields such as Candler and the new Camp Gordon port, but the military fields that will be necessary as the defense program proceeds apace.

This selection of Atlanta does place a heavy responsibility. Vital services must be strengthened and maintained under all conditionsand these are plans which should be made now-to insure against the placing of an additional burden on the regular armed establishment in a time of emergency.

The opportunity for service thus is given the people of the city.

"There is no such thing," says Candidate Willkie meaningfully, "as the indispensable man." Hitler, for one, will resent that.

Let's Break the Record

It is now more than 60 days since there was a traffic fatality in Atlanta. For two full months not a man, woman or child has died as a result of an accident involving a vehicle upon the streets of this city.

Last year the city went 89 days without such a fatality. Let us all set ourselves to beat the record of 1939 during 1940. It can be done if every user of the streets, vehicle operator and pedestrian alike, will obey the traffic rules and exercise reasonable care.

Statistics show that the responsibility rests heavier upon the shoulders of pedestrians than upon automobile drivers. For the majority of fatal street accidents are caused by pedestrian carelessness or failure to observe the simple rules of safety.

Atlanta has, for the past three years, shown a steady and gratifying decline in the number of traffic deaths. In 1937 there were 28 prior to August 13. For the same period in 1938 there were 26 and last year the figure had dropped to 19.

For this year, the figure is, so far, the same as in 1939-19.

We must continue to improve, which means we must reduce the number for that portion of 1940 yet to come. One of the best ways to go about it would be for everyone to resolve, now, that we are going to beat, substantially, 1939's record of 89 consecutive deathless days.

Fresh from the excitement in France, our Ambassador Bill Bullitt is in Washington and telling the chief what he saw there, over his shoulder.

With a campaign, a conscription debate and 125 assorted commentators monopolizing the public ear, maybe Confucius is waiting for a station break.

The New York Yankees, of the old nobility of sport, are seeing how the other half lives.

Flynn, the successor to Farley, promises a vigorous campaign in behalf of the Democratic ticket. It is not true, however, that he intends to drop leaflets on Vermont.

A downed Nazi flyer wandered around England undiscovered for eleven days. That British thing of looking through the stranger is the fate worse than death.

The Story of Dunkirk

The current issue of the Saturday Evening Post tells, partially, the story of Dunkirk. It may never be told in full, certainly not until after the war is over. But the story that canbe told is more gripping than any fiction in a magazine that has long been noted for the work of outstanding authors.

The account now printed is that of Taffrail, an officer of the Royal Navy with access to the records and the human beings who directed and participated in the most dramatic rescue of an army ever attempted.

It explains also why Great Britain vitally needs the 50 destroyers that national leaders are urging be made available. In the evacuation six of the vitally necessary little ships were sunk, and it is implied that not one of the number used escaped without some damage which probably has not yet been fully repaired.

But the great story is the story of the men who took over the little tugs and the lifeboats and the rowboats into a flaming hell. The volunteers who went knowing their chances of coming back were slim indeed, and who went again and again in little boats slashed with bomb splinters and machinegun bullets and yet brought out the men on the beaches. It is the story of the two men who set out down the Thames in canoes, willing to risk the treacherous waters of 22 miles of channel if they could bring back but one man each. It is the story of the men who volunteered in such numbers that all could not be used, who dropped their tools in the nearby factories and set forth jauntily in anything that would float and move.

It is also the story of the women who went unhestitatingly in the hospital ships to be bombed and machinegunned and still to serve the wounded. It is the story of empire. It is why Britain will stand where France fell. For it is the story of the undaunted extra these men of the island kingdom were willing to give in the face of apparently insurmountable

Somewhere in that tremendous hell was forged a spirit that the automatons of Hitler can never beat. No men of the playing fields of Eton were these. They were something greater, something more. They scorned death, these thousands upon thousands of men, that something greater than they might live.

They took with them a greater fire than that of bombs, of shells, of bullets-that of free men. These are the men who hold fast today the Bastion of Britain. Somehow Taffrail has told all men that these will live-or die-free men, even as you and I.

Though scarcely more than a youth, Mel Ott celebrates his fifteenth year with the New York Giants. He is commonly believed to be the first white child born on the Polo Grounds.

Normalcy

With the world in its present state of agitation it is well to be reminded now and then that the casual and quiet things of life continue. Such things, for instance, as the pursuits, hobbies and the interests of average men and women.

A reminder of this kind was recently glimpsed in news of the sale of the famous British Guiana stamp. This bit of cancelled postage stamp, a one-center, and said to be the only one of its kind in the world, was sold for a price reported in the neighborhood of $50,000. It has been regarded as the most valuable stamp in existence, this little stamp issued in 1856 in British Guiana for one cent.

Rarities of this kind always excite the interest, not only of persons whose hobby is collecting, but of the general public as well. That the stamp brought such a high price holds significance because it was made possible by the fact that thousands of persons all over the world find great pleasure in philately. And that such interest holds is further reaffirmation that all is not dark with all spirits

No one since has improved on Will Rogers' advice to the new soldiery, practicing in '17 with wooden guns: "Study hard, boys. You may capture a real one."

Editorial of the Day

JEWS TO POLAND (From the Oakland Tribune) The forced migration of 40,000 Polish Jews from the Nazi-occupied town of Krakow is just a drop in the bucket that has been heard outside the military camp that was Poland. Still, it is a clue to the immediate future of Europe under its present masters. Note that the first "emigrants" to be herded into the unannexed reservation between the Reich and the U.S.S.R. will be unmarried men. Torn from their homes and dependent on the will of the Nazis, these men are thus made malleable material for new "labor battalions" to support the economy of the Greater

Reich with its ponderous weight of armies. This form of omnipotent state control is no novelty. Russia has often moved workers, even communities. Movements of refugees in conquered Belgium and France have the same motivation. Always there is a double purpose: to extract the most from the manpower regardless of considerations of the individual, and to break up the population to destroy any pos-sibility of mass resistance. It is the "divide and rule" policy in its simplest and most brutal form. first sight it seems encouraging that the Jewish families who will be uprooted later will be permitted to take all their belongings with them, a luxury not permitted to those who fled Germany before the war. But imagine what belongings are left to the Jews by a completely

THE CAPITAL PARADE

By JOSEPH ALSOP AND ROBERT KINTNER.

RHYTHM OF CONGRESS WASHINGTON, Aug. 15 .- The congressional leadership expects the onslaught against England to give them easy work in passing the remaining measures of the defense program, such as the conscription bill. It is a grim thing to say, yet it is the fact, and the fact is not

The question naturally arises, since every informed person has been momentarily expecting the onslaught on England for many weeks, why its coming should make it any easier to pass defense measures prepared in anticipation of it. The answer lies, of course, in congress' peculiar rhythm of response to events abroad.

The large majority of members publicly or privately approve the type of foreign policy advocated by the President and Wendell Willkie. A great many of them, however, are not quite clear in their opinions, and are afraid of the isolationist groups in their Thus, when events reach a climax, as during the battle of France, congress is ready to act rapidly and forcefully. At that time, before the French collapse changed the feeling overnight, informal tests by the leaders even indicated that sentiment was growing fast for outright repeal of the neutrality act.

In the lulls between climaxes, on the other hand, a kind of wishful hopefulness appears that the next climax may be avoided, or may not be so had. Rapid and forceful action becomes impossible, and the voices of leading isolationists, such as Senator Burton K. Wheeler and Senator Gerald P. Nye, are loudly heard. Then the lull ends, the Nyes and Wheelers are silent or ignored, and congress prepares to act again. Conversations with most of the congressional chieftains confirm this analysis.

GRIM FACTS Indeed, the shrewder senators and representatives are so well aware of this congressional rhythm that they have even begun to consider it in making legislative plans. One of these is the wise Republican senate leader, Charles L.

McNary, of Oregon. While McNary has not yet announced in favor of the conscription bill, he has made the bill no exception to his rule of free exchange of information and advice with the Democratic leaders. Discussing the bill with his opposite number, Senator Alben W. Barkley, of Kentucky, he urged delay in the early stages of the conscription debate. He reminded Barkley that the full-dress attack England was thought likely to come at any time and he argued that, when the attack did come the conscription bill would be promptly voted, without too much inflammatory talk or too many nullifying or damging amendments. Barkley agreed, and, putting McNary's advice into effect, canceled his plan for a Saturday session and adjourned the senate over the weekend.

Thus the conscription debate and the onslaught on England have begun simultaneously. As the great swarms of bombers continue to rain death and destruction on the English ports and vital centers, the climax psychology is expected to rise in congress. If the rhythm is followed, the phenomena attendant on the previous lull will disappear, and the conscription bill will be approved rather promptly, perhaps in stronger form than at present. Again, it is a grim thing But if these expectations of the leaders prove correct, the onslaught on England has come just in time to save conscription, which was doomed in the house without far firmer presidential support than it has yet received.

GLOOMY OUTLOOK Unless the pattern of congressional reaction has changed sharply, moreover, the climax psychology will also promote action on all the other measures now pending. The remarkable protest of certain midwestern senators that the defense commission has not delayed the defense construction program to place orders in their states, will cease to be a threat to the defense tax bill. The tax bill will be passed rather promptly. If the English seem able to hold out, perhaps a bill releasing the needed destroyers to the English navy

Meanwhile, at the end of the first testing days of the battle of Britain, the outlook is considered extremely dark by the service department experts. The chances are even that the battle will be over, and that this country will be confronted with a Germany everywhere victorious within a comparatively short time. sidering the disastrous consequences which every informed and expert official believes such an event will have to the United States. it seems too bad that the peculiarities of congressional rhythm have not allowed it to be foreseen and efficienly prevented or prepared

Ralph Waldo Emerson, great American, wrote some comments upon the British people. He wrote these words nearly a hundred years ago and their aptness today is almost uncanny. A Speech IN 1847.

In November, 1847, Emerson made a speech in Manchester, and the following sentences from that address could, we believe, be ut-tered today with equal assurance and a special aptness:

NEW YORK, Aug. Objections thus far offered against the military training bill are many and good, but still they do not cover all the ground. If students of religion are to be exempt from this duty, then, students of atheism should be similarly favored in a nation having no established religion, and if married men be excused certainly bachelors should not be compelled to serve, for the state of being unloved seldom is voluntary and is in most cases of itself a misfortune.

The French, who are a funny race, used to have a den which was intensively advertised and much admired here, under the simple rules of which all citizens of certain ages were required to spend their time with the colors, regardless of considerations other than physical infirmity. The collapse of their army was due to causes which never will cease to be discussed until they, like the Germans, in some future day shake themselves in a furious resentment against the ignominy rubber in by a cocky conqueror and, in the regu lar course of European events, redeem their pride and redress their suffering. But those causes did not include favoritism in selection of recruits.

Their young men looked forward to a Eager For Day day when they would earn the rights of citizenship by serving some time with the colors, and they planned their lives accordingly system which favored neither class nor calling, and put no extra penalties on the unfortunates who pitched woo badly or were concientious misogynists. But the causes of their tragedy certainly did not include parliamentary lint-picking and obstruction in other matters affecting the national defense, and this should, but probably will not, be taken to heart here.

The opposition to the military. training bill has rolled up such a total of objections and proposals exemption that the bill has now been made ridiculous and no longer proposes equal burdens and duties on all fit men, but a mass of discriminations against a very few.

Under the American system of education a man may stall around colleges for years after he should have spat on his hands and come grips with responsibility, but, of course, it would be unwise and against the national interest to divert him from his books until in his own opinion, he has become saturated with knowledge.

If special skills Labor are indispensa-Would Kick ble in the factories the indispensables might be inducted into the army establisment, too, and paid the same wages that are her in her old age, not decrepit, given to draftees who are unemployed or unskilled, but that would impair the gains of organized labor and wipe out some of the dues that rich and highly confidential union treasuries expect to skim off the rearmament appropriations.

Or men earning high incomes in legitimate but not indispensable lines of work might be guaranteed their regular rates of pay while in uniform as a means of complicating, embarrassing and thoroughly discrediting a and urgently necessary plan to

The present plan, plus the narrowing proposals offered to date, is so discriminatory that only a few more little amendments would be needed to kill it altogether and notify the enemy that American defense has been placed solely on the superpatriotic minority,

By RALPH McGILL.

"YOU'RE NOT BEHIND THE PLOW" __ It is possible to get a job which will pay, to those diligent and willing to work for it, as much as $157.50 a month—with clothes, board and room tossed in. That's in the army, navy or marine corps. I am moved to this piece for the paper by certain earnest gentlemen who, in an effort to increase enlistments in the armed service of the nation, would increase the pay from its present base of $21.

The army is no place to become wealthy. Indeed, the old army song admits that in its lines:

"You're in the army now, You're not behind the plow. You'll never get rich, (Five words censored here) You're in the army now!

It is being argued that since young men flock to the CCC, where the pay is $30 per month, they would flock to the service if the pay were the same. The argument is specious. Not to mention being incorrect. In the first place, the young men of the CCC receive about $5 per month. The rest of it is inexorably allocated to their families. The CCC, a magnificent success, has been of great aid to the young men of the nation and to their families. It is not a financial success.

The army, navy or marine corps does not accept young men with dependents. It will take those without dependents and it will clothe them, feed them, and pay them well,

THE ARMY PAY The army pay act of 1922 established the base pay of a buck private at $21 per month. This is for the freshest recruit, for the hay-foot, garden variety private.

But even the buck private is not restricted. He can earn more. by qualifying as a sharpshooter or expert, or by qualifying in any one of five other branches, earn up to $51 per month. It is up to the buck private. Those willing to work and with some talent can earn

The first promotion is to the grade of private, first class. That alone brings a pay raise of $9 per month. It raises his possibilities to $60 per month.

The next step up is to corporal. The base pay there is $42, and this runs all the way up to master sergeant with a base pay of $126. This is plus a list of bonuses and pay based on extra service. It is possible for an enlisted man to earn as much as $157.50 per month-with all living expenses provided. Most of them earn more than base pay. Of the approximate 300,000 men now in the army, more than 250,000 draw more than the base pay. This is in addition to all their clothes, food and travel allowances

It isn't the worst of careers for a man who wants to go in, work hard, take all the opportunities presented, and try for the top. It is much more attractive, financially, than the CCC,

GOOD MEDICINE Discipline is good medicine. The young man who wants to go into any career for which he is trained, will be better off after a year of learning to soldier. Learning to soldier is much more than carrying a rifle and learning drill. It is learning to look after one's self, to learn physical and mental discipline.

It is, of course, democratic. It would catch the slackers, and the young men of the American Youth movement, who have so many half-baked ideas and so few manners. It would be most beneficial and educational for them to spend a year under the benign direction of an old-fashioned top sergeant who means jump when he says jump.

There are fewer dangerous ideas and fewer temptations for a young man in the service than in his first year at college. Or, to avoid arguments, there are no more such dangers. He is more likely to get a straight, frank outlook in service than out.

No one can be sure of many things. But it would seem that we can hold to that which we are pleased to call our way of life, if we arm and make our nation strong. There isn't much doubt but that the prosperity of almost three decades has left us soft and complacent. Even now there is to be found that same old selfishness which made France easy prey and which would have sunk England long before now had not England kept her parliament open for the voices of the opposition. We have seen what complacency can do. I wonder if the leaders of labor and of industry have noticed what has happened in those countries where complacency and an unwillingness to sacrifice for the common good has prevailed. It is surprising, and alarming, labor presidents should be aligned with those who protest against building an army. An alarmist could find many alarming weaknesses in our national fabric, many of them identical with those in the torn and trampled national fabrics of natio

The Spartan Thief Seemed Happy, But the Stolen Fox Gnawed at His Vitals

BY ROBERT QUILLEN. The plant grower finds among ten thousand seedlings of the among ten thousand born to ordinary parents proves to be a genius, thus upsetting most of the popular theories of heredity.

"How can he be so smart," the neighbors ask, "when his parents are so common?" They forget that his ancestry did not begin with his parents. Somewhere in the background there was an ancestor possessed the qualities inherited by the genius.

For this much is certain. Parents can transmit to children only the qualities and capacities that are in themselves. Two or more chemicals, being mixed together, may produce a certain quality not found in any of them individually, but each possessed the ability to contribute a certain share to the formation of the quality. Thus the qualities in a child may be inherited from its parents or may result from the mixture of qualifies possessed by its ancestors, but it can't inherit something that doesn't exist. The monkey can't inherit the capacity for speech.

It is the law of the universe that every effect is produced by an adequate cause, and every cause inevitably results in a certain effect, We are astonished or mystified because we do not see the many hidden and remote causes that work together to produce an effect; but the causes are there—they must be there—and if we could find them and understand their potentialities, we could infallibly foresee every effect they will produce.

Because this is true, each of us is in large measure his own ancestor. He dies each night when he falls alseep, and awakes next morning a new man in a new world. But he does not start from scratch. For he is the product of the man he was yesterday, and he inherits from all of his yesterdays the qualities and capacities that will make or break him.

Of course a man must reap what he sows. How could it be Every act in the past did its part to make him the kind of man he is now, and every act today is a cause which will have its inevitable effect tomorrow. # Crackers Play Smokies Here In Two Tonight

After Poindexter, Kerksieck Are Shelled, Burgess Stops 'Em.

By WIRT GAMMON. CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Aug.

15. - Atlanta's pennant - minded Crackers gave the improved Lookouts a game and then snatched it right back from them here tonight, 7 to 6, to complete a sweep of the three-game series and to run the Chattanooga losing streak to eight games.

These are evil days for the Lookouts, but it appeared the law of averages and a collection of three wild pitches by Atlanta pitchers, Jennings Poindexter and Weyman Kerksieck, would when the home team was in front as late as the fifth, 5 to 2.

After a successful threeme series with the Lookouts, the Crackers return home tonight to battle the Knoxville Smokies in a ladies' night double-header starting at 7:45 at Ponce de Leon. The series is for three games, and Sunday Nashville comes here for a twin bill.

But the Atlantans read on the big scoreboard in the left that Nashville was winning. And they let fly with a winning outburst of two tallies in the seventh. Meanwhile Lefty Burgess, ever poisonous to Chattanooga, had taken the mound in the third to stop the Lookouts cold. The lone tally off him in the ninth was unearned. Buddy Bates was the standout player of the game. The fleet centerfielder robbed Lookouts time after time, once in the sixth, right in the clutch, pegging home after fast fielding on a hit to prevent a run from scoring from third.

And it was this same Bates man who came up in the first of the sixth with two men on and At-lanta behind two runs, to single home one run. Later in the inning he scored the tying run. Not content with that, he strode to the plate in the seventh with the score still tied, two men out, Emil Mailho on first, and cracked the second pitch a country mile into left—smack against the fence, for two bases. That put the Crackers ahead, and for keeps.

A Long Time Do you remember one September afternoon? All right, do you recall when Willard Marshall hit his last home run?

Stumped again? Well, it was June 4. The months have passed since the young Virginian drew a bead on anybody's Trouble was Willard had too hot a streak as a beginner in pro ball. It will be recalled he got his total of 12 homers in short order. That is, he hit the last eight in about a dozen

The pace excited the imagination of followers. It looked as if he might set home-run records. And yet, it didn't seem to make sense.

Here was a boy who had never played pro ball. He was a fugitive from the sophomore class at Wake Forest. With virtually no experience, he was making a mockery of the fences-and a travesty of Southern league pitching.

The pitchers settled Willard down after he had collected dozen four-base blows. First they worked on him with a change of pace. . . . Then when they had him looking for the change-up, they'd slip a fast ball by him.

One thing you can say for the Southern league pitchers . they are nobody's fools. If you can hit Southern league pitching consistently, you can stick in the major leagues.

Anyway, they settled Marshall down as regards his homerun hitting. They didn't keep him from getting his hits, True, his average has dropped from over .360 to .317. But who still leads the club in home runs, also in runs batted in? Nobody but Junior.

They may slow him down, but he still drives in those runs. Scouts look at a boy's runs-batted-in total first thing. Then they examine his fielding and

Marshall still remains the brightest prospect on the Cracker club. He will drive in well over 100 runs his first year in pro ball-and fast pro ball, at that. He will bat over

I don't know what more you could expect from a fugitive from a sophomore class.

Alf Must Go The scouts have professed a liking for Alf Anderson and they'll have a chance to bid for him after the season ends.

The Crackers can't take a chance on losing Alf in the draft. Hence, they must sell him.

Many of the scouts have an idea that Alf, a brainy ball player, would make a fine third baseman. He probably would.

May Sell Mailho It is strictly my own belief that the Crackers may sell Emil Mailho after this season.

The fiery Frenchman deserves another chance in the big leagues. I've heard it said that several clubs are interested

DONEHOO will be delighted to learn that he is steadily improving from a serious illness. . . . We all miss Paul at the Cracker games. . . . Dan McINTYRE would just as soon see football starting right away. . . . Haven't checked with Tess BRADSHAW, but the feeling probably is mutual. . Bobby DODD departs this weekend for a coaching school at Daytona Beach, Fla. . . . Those Jackets lost a mighty fine blocking back from Texas recently. . . . The big boy happened to drop around at Tech when all the coaches were out. . . . He departed for North Carolina and is still there with Bear WOLF, according to reports. . . . Charley BRUM-BELOE, the Atlanta boy who is pitching for Rochester of the International league, has won 15 and lost eight. . . . Murray (Red) HOWELL, who played amateur ball around here, is the top hitter in the International with a mark of .359. . . Virgil TRUCKS, who holds the professional baseball strikeout record, has only broken even so far for Beaumont. . He has won nine, lost nine. . . . Stan SPERRY is batting .313 for San Diego of the Pacific Coast league. . . . Bill SCHMIDT, pitching for Sacramento, has won 12, lost 11. . . . Another ex-Cracker, Poundem Paul EASTERLING, is hitting an even .300 for Dallas. . . . There are those who will wager that Drane LESTER, of Mississippi, is named conference athletic

He said it was the third suit brought by Barwick in connection with the same matter and pointed out that the state supreme court had fully adjudicated all of the issues involved in the present suit.

He also said the court had held that the effort "of former Commissioner Torn Linder to provide

Forebears of College Belles Helped To Establish Shorter

• THERE IS AN interesting story behind the news that Mary Walker, of Mobile, and Jean Edwards, of Atlanta, are to be roommates at Shorter College the coming year. These belles will combine more than the usual college spirit and loyalty in their association at the Rome institution, for a forebear of each was instrumental in establishing Shorter College.

Mary's forebear, the late Colonel Alfred Shorter, founded and endowed the college which bears his name. Jean's great-uncle, the late William Lampkin, of Forsyth, was also an incorporator of Shorter, along with Colonel Shorter, both men being leaders in cultural and educational circles in the state.

Grange, now called Hills and Dales, were not "deserted after the death of their beloved mistress, Sarah Coleman Ferrell," as

Mr. Ferrell, grandson of the late Mrs. Ferrell and Judge Blount Coleman Ferrell, designers of the famous gardens, says:

1903, at the age of 86. My was recently stated in a magazine story which was copied in good faith by Sally Forth.

Mary is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Vivian Walker, of Mobile, and granddaughter of Mrs. James. Cromer, of this city. Mrs. Walker is the former Emily Cassin, of Atlanta, who has resided in Mobile since her marriage. Mrs. Cromer was Minnie Hillyer, daughter of the late Judge and Ruby Lampkin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cobb Lampkin. It was the former Miss Lampkin's uncle, the late William Lampkin, of Forsyth, who was co-tounder of Shorter with Colonel Shorter.

Another interesting feature concerning Mary and Jean is that their mothers were both students at Lucy Cobb Institute in Athens. Another coincidence is that Mary's grandmother, Mrs. Cromer, and her two great-aunts, Mrs. Bernard Wolff and the late Mrs. Frank Coker, attended Shorter College when, as the Hillyer sisters, they were completing their education. Mary is a grad-uate of Mercer High school in Mobile, while Jean finished Washington Seminary last May.

• • FROM SUCH an authoritative source as Fortune Chisholm Ferrell, of this city, comes the information that the beautiful Ferrell Gardens in La-grandfather, who had always given of his wealth to the maintenance of the gardens, died in February, 1908, more than four years after her death, and, during that period, continued to watch over them with loving and meticulous

"His will specified that the gardens were to be sold at his death, and the proceeds to be divided among his heirs. As one of the executors of the estate, it became my duty to see that the gardens were maintained in their original beauty. This I did with unstinted love and devotion. They were never deserted, some members of the family living there continuously until the property was given over to its present owners, and adequate funds were set aside by the estate to keep them in perfect order."

The gardens, you know, are among the most picturesque in this section of the country, and Sally, like her readers, is interested in learning from Mr. Ferrell more about the history of Ferrell Gardens.

What Stocks Did.

NEW YORK, Aug. 15 .- (AP)-The stock market kept its feet on recovery ground today despite intensification of the air battle over England which some expected might bring a quick decision in the conflict.

Steels and motors led a quiet forward tilt which, at the best, put favorites up fractions to more than a point. While prices were close, pivotals finished with a major portion of their gains.

The Associated Press average of 60 issues retained a net advance of .2 of a point at 41.6. Transfers, however, dwindled to 223,880 shares from 271,087 the day before. Volume was the smallest for a full session since last Thursday.

The market hardly wavered in the final half hour's dealings as a string of bulletins told of masses of German bombers striking at all important sections of the British Isles and wreaking damage as yet unestimated.

Aluminum of America was up 2 in the Curb. Lesser gainers were American Cyanamid "B," Electric Bond & Share, Bath Iron Works, Brewster Aero and Cities

Whrrrrrrr-Make Way for Martins, Boys!

It'll Be Hello, Marietta, Soon—Brother Connie Watts Says So.

By WILLARD COPE. Hang on, Marietta!

They will come. Have patience. Never doubt it. They will come. That is, the martins.

It is a further official forecast of Connie N. Watts, majordomo of the Dixie Martin-Bluebird Co-operative Club, who-if you remember-called the turn on the arrival of the Atlanta contingent of our feathered pals two weeks ago.

Brother Watts was in town yesterday with a letter, a letter showing either how smart Uncle Sam is or else how well known Broth-Watts' organization is.

Mail Comes Through. Anyway, the letter's wrapper, an ordinary envelope, merely had on it a drawing of a bluebird, a martin, a club, a ball, the letters "win" and an outline map of Georgia.

It was mailed at 2:30 o'clock in the afternoon at Lawrenceville and reached him promptly at 8 o'clock the next morning at Baldwin, Ga., headquarters of his 27-state bird-protective organization. "Shows discernment all around,"

he commented, while the envelope was being photographed. "The letter was from a niece of mine, Ethel Moore. Nice drawing, it was. She just wanted to see if they were smart enough to understand. They were.' But about Marietta and the

Special to THE CONSTITUTION. MILLEDGEVILLE, Ga., Aug. 15. Flood waters in Tanyard branch and Fishing creek, which skirt the northern and southern edges of Milledgeville, had begun to recede today, but the Oconee river, which burst its banks Tuesday after rising from 6.73 feet to a flood stage of 22 feet, still spread over several hundred yards of lowlands along its banks.

FOOD parade THE ATLANTA PCONSTITUTION

ATLANTA, GA., FRIDAY MORNING, AUGUST 16, 1940.

A Special Event Comes With Sunday

One of the main planks in my platform is long and lazy Sunday breakfasts! Sunday breakfast is to many the most enjoyable meal in the week, and it is always a rather special occasion. First that waking at the regular hour, the thought that you can enjoy an extra snooze or if wide awake, time to enjoy fruit juice and the morning paper in bed. Then a late and very lazy breakfast—a sort of combination breakfast and lunch. Company for these Sunday breakfasts is delightful and such entertaining is informal and easy on the hostess.

Foods for leisurely Sunday breakfasts should be the sort one never has time for during the week. Fried chicken, for example, with milk gravy and hot spoon bread; or baked finnan haddie and hashed brown potatoes; or mushroom omelet with broiled tomato slices and hot corn muffins. When the days turn cooler there will be baked link sausages with fried mush and honey or maple syrup; or sausage cakes with sauted apples and muffins or cornbread. and bacon are perennial favorites for breakfast, as are waffles with creamed chicken. But we must get on to more concrete suggestions—recipes for some of these goodies.

Fried chicken needs no special recipe—just be sure the chickens are young and tender. If you like you might get them ready for frying on Saturday night—wash, rinse, season with salt and pepper and roll in flour, then cover and place in the refrigerator. The spoon bread is another matter. This is an old-fashioned southern dish and is cornbread baked in a very deep casserole or baking dish and served with a spoon—hence the name. The following recipe is an especially good one and makes enough for six people: Put 2 cups water on to boil and when boiling hard sprinkle in 1 cup white cornmeal, stirring constantly and cooking the mixture for 2 or 3 minutes until it thickens. Remove from the fire and stir in 2 tablespoons butter and 1½ teaspoons salt. Pour into a large bowl to cool slightly. Meanwhile beat the yolks of 4 eggs and mix with ¾ cup milk. Stir this into the cornmeal and then add ¾ cup flour mixed and sifted with 2 tablespoons sugar and 2 tablespoons baking powder. Beat in the stiffly beaten whites of the eggs last and pour the mixture into a deep buttered baking dish—one of the oven glass variety is excellent—and bake in a moderately hot oven-375 degrees for 45 minutes or until golden brown, well risen and firm. Serve as soon as possible after it is baked and serve from the dish in which it is baked. Pour chicken gravy with milk over the spoon bread, or serve with butter and jam or jelly. Chilled fruit juice might well precede the chicken, or half a juicy cantaloupe or a slice of honeydew melon. Add plenty of fragrant hot coffee and your breakfast is complete.

Baked finnan haddie is an old favorite. Buy the fillets of haddie or if these are not available use the canned fillets. Put the smoked fillets of finnan haddie in a shallow baking pan and cover with warm water. Let stand for 30 minutes over the simmering flame on your gas stove or over low electric heat. Then drain, add milk to half cover the fish and dot with small pieces of butter. Bake in a moderate oven-375 degrees-for 30 minutes and serve piping hot with hot grits or rice and hot biscuits or crusty rolls and your favorite jam. Glasses of chilled cranberry and orange juice in equal proportions should precede the fish. Coffee, of course, goes along with it.

Fried mush makes use of cornmeal too and the mush should be cooked on Saturday. Boil 3 cups water and add 1 teaspoon salt and 34 cup fine cornmeal, sprinkling it in slowly and stirring constantly. Stir until the mush thickens, then cook in a double boiler for 45 minutes, stirring once or twice. Pour into a greased bread pan and let stand until firm and cold. Cut down in slices for frying and dip each slice in a little flour. Fry in hot sausage or bacon fat-sausage fat if you serve link sausages with it.

Clayton Superior Court Postponed

Clayton county's August superior court term has been postponed by Judge James C. Davis, of the Stone Mountain circuit, until November 18, because of a comparatively small number of cases accruing since the last term. Scheduled to open Monday morning for the regular term, the court will meet but for a few hours at that time to hear undefended divorce cases, default verdicts, and any other uncontested

No grand jury will be impan-elled for the term. Judge Davis will swear in 14 traverse jurymen Monday to hear the uncontested

YOUNG INFANTRY OFFICERS TO STUDY HYGIENE

FORT BENNING, Ga., Aug. 15. Old but important army subjects -hygiene and sanitation-are en-gaging the attention of 456 young infantry officers, about to start their active army career, in a 12 weeks' course of instruction at the infantry school.

The class consists of 56 regular army second lieutenants who graduated at the United States Military Academy last June, and 400 reserve officers, most of whom graduated from R. O. T. C. units at civilian educational institutions last June and elected to have a year of active duty training with the regular army. At the conclusion of the course the officers will take up duty with units throughout the army.

Captain Crawford F. Sams, Medical Corps faculty member, is in charge of the class, and map and photograph reading will be under Lieutenant Colonel William F. Heavey of the Engineer Corps.

BRIGADIER GENERAL PROS-SER HAS ANOTHER "EYE."

FORT BENNING, Ga., Aug. 15. Brigadier General Walter E. Prosser, commanding general of the Fourth Division now in training in the Harmony church area on the Fort Benning reservation, has another "eye."

This is not a matter for study by medical authorities as the gen-eral is, of course, quite normal physically, but he is proud of this "eye" which was awarded him recently by the War Department. In army phraseology a reconnais-sance organization is often referred to as "the eyes of the com-

The unit referred to is the Fourth Reconnaissance Troop, a mechanized armored organization commanded by Captain Raymond Palmer, cavalry. It was activated August 1 and when complete will number approximately 105 men and 20 vehicles. A majority of these motors are fast armored cars capable of delivering plenty of firepower, but their mission is to obtain as much information of the enemy as possible and get it back to the commanding general at double-time, fighting only when it is necessary to accomplish their mission or protect information already gained. They are equipped with the latest radio communication for transmitting this intelligence in the shortest possible space of time, but the situation in ombat is sometimes such that radio is not practical, therefore these cars are designed to cover rough terrain at a high rate of speed. They sometimes operate as much as 50 miles in advance of a fast motorized column.

Since the World War a cavalry unit has not previously been assigned as a part of an infantry division except for short experi-mental periods, and this troop is a quite different kind of cavalry than that tried out in the past, one type representing horseflesh and oats, the other associated with fire and steel.

The troop, upon activation, received a highly trained cadre of 20 men from the Fifth Cavalry at Fort Oglethorpe, Ga., headed by First Sergeant Tony Defigio with Sergeant Joshua W. Smith, troop clerk, handling the administrative. clerk, handling the administrative details. They expect their full equipment any day. Prior to the arrival of Captain Palmer, Lieutenant John S. # How To Handle a Husband Who Has Given Up Hope And Lives on Wife's Earnings

By Caroline Chatfield.

DEAR MISS CHATFIELD:

I'm faced with a problem that I cannot work out and I can't adjust myself to living with it as it is. We had been married ten years, getting along very nicely in every way, when my husband lost his job. We thought it would be only a matter of time until he had another, so we used our savings and trusted in the future. Well, it seems that he lost his ambition and his sense of responsibility for his family at the same time he lost his job. Three years have passed and we are living on what I am able to earn. I was lucky enough to get a very good position which I had held before marriage and I took it to tide good position which I had held before marriage and I took it to tide matters over. Today I am supporting the family and giving my husband pocket money and getting plenty tired of it. I am threatening to go back to my parents' home and take our two children with the. What would you advise?

MRS. L. G.

I have often quoted a physician as saying that his practice among women had convinced him that from a wife's standpoint the unforgivable sin in a husband was his failure to work and produce. He says that a wife will forgive her husband's infidelity sooner than she will forgive him for nonsupport; that she will brook cruelty and abuse and be game about it; but when it comes to putting up with a loafer her patience is soon exhausted. This is not surprising when you consider how loudly a man's work speaks for his character; how the money he makes talks for him, not the amount of money he makes but the regularity of its coming in.

What to tell a wife to do with a prideless, doless husband I don't know, except to stick by him until she has done her utmost to put him on his feet, restore his lost self-respect and induce him to go to work, if it's no more than digging ditches with WPA tools. How to do this? Well, the loafer is certainly not a happy man living in a home where his wife feels more and more contemptuous of him and his children absorb the contempt and pass it over to him. It's possible that he may be appealed to on this score: namely, that a job—any sort of a job—would increase his pleasure in life, give him an interest and insure his wife and children's regard.

Second, encouragement rather than curses is always more effective passing from wife to husband. While it must be well-nigh impossible for a wife to continue feeding encouragement to a man who sleeps and eats and spends her cash, still the thought of the children may sustain her a little longer than her faith in the loafer would sustain her.

Third, a wife who is already out in the business world may make contacts which put her on the track of jobs and she should do her best to locate something for a husband who hasn't the will nor the wit to roll his own. Maybe her effort in his behalf will awaken him

Failing in all this, I'd say she should keep the spending money for herself and the children and let papa do without everything but food to keep him alive and an old suit to cover his nakedness, and if he didn't like this meager living, let him look elsewhere for a better one.

Good Figures Need Erect Shoulders

Really Good Postures Win Comment

By Ida Jean Kain

It's the stark truth that bathing suits and evening gowns make a good figure look better, a bad one worse. Of the two, an evening gown is the more merciless because it puts you on dress parade. But the way you look in your bathing suit is a fair preview of the way you are going to look in your evening gown.

In a roomful of women "dressed to kill," really good figures are scarce. The masculine consensus is there should be a regulation requiring more material! Any time an exquisite creature with lovely arms and gleaming shoulders appears on the scene, she creates a sensation. She stands out so in that roomful of bad figures that she is apt to get herself talked

The trouble with most figures is they're either slim through the middle with scrawny arms and shoulders, or they are the popover style. It would be hard to say which is less attractive.

Take a critical view of your figure in a bathing suit—and get busy with the exercises that will perfect your decolletage! If you are lucky enough to be able to swim regularly this summer, that's the de luxe exercise—it makes for softly rounded contours while don't swim and you are at a beach Chaplin Film slimming you down. But if you or lake, row a boat—every morn-ing. Rowing is almost as good as swimming for your figure.

If you can't row or swim, get a stretching bar or a medicine ball. Both afford just the type of exercise the average figure needs. They beautify the arms and shoulders, straighten the back, and pull you slim through the middle One of the best of the medicine ball exercises is to keep tossing it overhead, never allowing the ball to fall lower than the crown of the head. This is a marvelous exercise for the arms, shoulders and throat—you have to tip the head back to watch the ball. A four-pound medicine ball is the best weight for most women.

Lacking a medicine ball or a bar, do the simple exercise of making big and little circles with the arms, holding them straight out from the shoulders and moving them at the shoulder girdle. Always make the circles back-

In these days we want people of initiative to find new things to do to meet unusual situations, and certainly this is a good example of the type of thing which can be done.

I also have a letter from a young man who has been attending medical school in Nebraska. He is going to give up his studies because of lack of funds, but he does not make a personal appeal. He simply states that he thinks medical students are as important to the defense program as any other group of workers and that they should be developed by assistance from the government. He adds that such students as these do not want something for nothing, but are willing to work, now or in the future, to pay for whatever assistance they may be given. I cannot help feeling that he has put his finger on something which may have been forgotten, namely, that defense extends to so many different lines that we cannot just produce soldiers and mechanics for the army or for defense industries. We will need doctors, musicians, painters, carpenters, cooks and any number of people who will carry on their professions in peacetime as well as in war, but who will form the reservoir from which we draw when need comes. Hence we cannot figure them in any general
